Having the note number right after the user name is not very readable, it feels like the note is referring to the user; what would you think of inserting it at the begin of the line or at least add a hyphen to separate username and note#?

It's fine in HTML since the note is at the end of the line.

- File r8090.diff added

This is a patch to move note number at beginning line.
I remove "note", because there is no "note" translation.

I tested 2 different versions of your patch:

- #1 <date and time> - <username>
- #1 - <date and time> - <username>

As a personal POV, I'd rather use the second one since, in the first one, the separation between note# last digit and date first digit is not obvious.

MARUYAMA-san, Thanks for your work!

#8 - 2011-12-06 04:51 - Toshi MARUYAMA

I committed "#1 - <date and time> - <username>" in trunk r8099 and 1.3-stable r8100.
